

#1 (now with words!)

To begin, let me just say with this vague, hasty, and grammatically-poor introduction that we are a dedicated group of Artists and Professionals, and even with whatever else we may always have going on, we really do want to make this the kind of blog that makes the literate part of your brain think. Because we do always have something else going on, this blog itself may not always be "literate." Think about that, and know that you've now been warned.